THE first season of the P.R.S. Club has in every way been successful, and down at the southern port the future of the sport seems well assured.

Over twenty yachts are on the club register, and by next season the fleet is to be still further augmented.

Emu, Ale. & Stout, purest & best, 1st prize 1909.

table it will also be seen how each boat fared throughout the season. Of the eighteen-footers Eunice heads the list with 20 points (assuming that the score is 5, 3, and 1 for first, second, and third places), her next opponents being Cygnus and Aeolus, with 10 each. Etna heads the 14-footers, with Erena next. The latter had her sail re-cut by Jas. Frederick, and has consequently put up a much better performance than in previous years. Robin accounted for the cruisers, and Lynx and Penelope each scored 12 points in the rater class.

With the present executive at the helm, the club has every prospect of many more bright seasons, and the Commodore (Mr. M. Greere) and officers have much to be proud of for the past, while Mr. J. R. Bolt, the never-tiring secretary, is in no small degree responsible for the flourishing state of affairs.

In one respect especially has the Squadron been most fortunate, and that is in the support given it by the ladies on social occasions. There can be no doubt that a large debt of gratitude is owed on this account to the fair sex.
